

INTERNATIONAL SPORTSMEN'S EXPOSITION Hunters, Fisherman can find it all - with Wilderness Unlimited

January 8, 2010

HAYWARD - Wilderness Unlimited is the left coast's largest hunting and fishing club of its kind for good reason. Known as W.U. to its members, the organization makes its place in the outdoor world by managing the recreation access on private property and providing members incredible opportunities.

W.U. encompasses over 100 ranches in California and Oregon for everything from panfishing to big game hunting. In fact W.U. is the largest private property manager of waterfowl, big game and fresh water fishing areas in the west.

W.U. is not a typical run out of the garage hunting club. The management has years of professional experience and an extremely dedicated full time staff. The mantra for the operation spills over to its members: "Work hard, play hard". The W.U. management knows how important it is to get out, one on one, with nature. Whether a member wants to just go out camping in solitude or chase quail with one's dog, W.U. staff's goal is to provide just that experience for their members.

Due to the responsibility that goes with accessing private property, W.U. has always had a high commitment of recruitment and education programs. Educational clinics include the whole gamut from hunter safety to big game hunting to fly fishing.

These programs are a huge component to W.U.'s commitment to sending qualified outdoors folks on to a landowner's land. W.U. is also known for their youth, women and outreach programs having used these special events to encourage outdoor participation since the club's inception.

For the last several years the outreach and education programs, as well as the habitat improvement programs, have been spearheaded by W.U.'s companion non-profit, the Wilderness Unlimited Foundation (WUF). With WUF's assistance, W.U. has made an even larger mark on the outdoor world. Partnering with other non-profits, government agencies and others like ISE and Western Outdoor News, W.U. stands in the forefront for all of our outdoor heritage interests.

No wonder that even during these tough economic times, Wilderness Unlimited has not only been able to survive but to excel in their quest for providing quality outdoor recreation.

Yes, Wilderness Unlimited has a screening process and rules for its members. The landowners are grateful for the structure and for the quality members willing to abide by them. Great for both the landowners and the members.
